Wild Asparagus

Wild Asparaguses are hand-harvested in France and are full of nutrients thanks to their wide exposure to the sun and organic way of growing on the border of fields. They are thinner than the classic green asparagus and the spears are snappy and crisp in texture. Their flavour is earthy, grassy and nutty, reminiscent of the terrain in they grew in. Aromas are subtly woody yet stronger than the cultivated ones. Wild Asparaguses can be simply blanched and served with a light citrusy vinaigrette or grilled and added to egg dishes as they complement them perfectly.
